Karlup Aboriginal Corporation

Karlup, is a Noongar Aboriginal term meaning homeland or heartland, was registered as an Aboriginal Community Controlled Organisation (ACCO) with the office of Registrar of Indigenous Corporations (ORIC) in April 2022.

Midland is based in the City of Swan, which according to Census data, has the largest population of Aboriginal people of any Local Government Authority throughout Western Australia.

Karlup has been built upon the engagement and empowerment of Aboriginal men and women through their participation in Moordjiti Maaman and Deadly Yorga's support groups, groups which have been operating successfully for many years in Midland.

Karlup Aboriginal Corporation has been developed in collaboration with Indigo Junction, a trusted and respected not for profit, which has been operating in the greater Midland area for over 30 years. This partnership has been formalised through a Collaboration Agreement, the implementation of which is overseen by an Indigo Junction/Karlup Steering Committee.

The Karlup Board is elected by and represents corporation members, while providing governance and strategic oversight. The work of the Corporation is governed by the "Karlup Rule Book".

Ngallan Koort – What we will do

Increase the availability of HOUSING for our community.

Create opportunities for ABORIGINAL LED and DEVELOPED services through fostering leadership, and codesigning services with our communities' Elders, Men, Women and Children.

Develop and run programs to improve CULTURAL KNOWLEDGE and SECURITY for Aboriginal children, young people and families.

Karlup's vision is for all Aboriginal people have a place to call home, be empowered to have a voice and to be in control of their own lives and communities.
